The non-voting shares may be converted into ordinary shares in accordance with the Luxembourg law of 10 August 1915 on commercial companies, as amended (the "LCA").*

The corporation's shares may be created, at the owner's option, in certificates representing single shares or two or more shares.

The Board of Directors is authorized and empowered within the limits of the Authorised Capital to (i) realize any increase of the share capital or equity of the Company with or without the issuance of new shares it being understood that the Board of Directors is authorized to issue such new shares (either ordinary or non-voting shares) in one or several issues and (ii) issue bonds, preferred equity certificates, warrants, options or other instruments convertible, exchangeable or exercisable into new shares (either ordinary or non-voting shares) and to issue new shares further to the conversion or exercise of the above mentioned instruments, it being understood that (a) if such instruments are issued before or during the period set forth in the paragraph below, the new shares (either ordinary or non-voting shares) upon the conversion or exercise of such instruments may be issued after the expiry of said period and (b) the Board of Directors is authorized to issue such new shares (either ordinary or non-voting shares) in one or several issues. For the avoidance of doubt, any increase of the share capital or equity of the Company, as well as any issue of bonds, preferred equity certificates, warrants, options or other instruments convertible, exchangeable or exercisable into new shares decided by the Board of Directors prior to 26 June 2017 under the former authorised share capital of the Company but not realized, converted or exercised at this date remains validly approved and can be realized, issued, converted or exercised under this new Authorised Capital.

Such authorisation conferred to the Board of Directors will expire five (5) years after the date of the general meeting of shareholders held on 26 June 2017 and can be renewed in accordance with the applicable legal provisions, it being understood that the Board of Directors can proceed to an increase of share capital or issue of the above mentioned instruments as of the date of the general meeting of shareholders held on 26 June 2017.

The Board of Directors is specially authorised to issue such new shares (either ordinary or non-voting shares) and, where applicable, the instruments to be issued in accordance with the provisions of this article 5 without reserving (i.e. by cancelling or limiting) for the existing shareholders the preferential right to subscribe for such shares and instruments.

"13.4 Notwithstanding any provision to the contrary in the Company's articles of association, any shareholder may take part in the deliberations with a number of votes equal to the number of shares held by him, without limitation, being understood however that the holders of non-voting shares shall only be entitled to vote in the specific cases foreseen by the LCA. Save where they have voting rights, no account shall be taken of non-voting shares in determining the conditions as to quorum and majority at General Meetings. Each share is entitled to one (1) vote."

The exact amount(s) and dates(s) referred to in Article 5 of the articles of association as amended above will be set according to the final amount(s) and date(s) on the effective holding date of the Meeting which will resolve on points 2, 3 and 4 of the agenda of the Meeting.

2- Circumstances in which the Board proposes to limit or suppress the preferential subscription rights of shareholders when making future capital increases in the framework of the authorised capital:

It is recalled that the goal of the legislator in establishing a preferential right of subscription is to prevent a shareholder from seeing its share and control in a company being diminished or diluted because of an increase in capital to which he could not subscribe.

As a measure to protect the financial interests of shareholders, the limitation or suppression of the preferential right can only be envisaged in a framework justified by special circumstances and should only be in the sole interest of the Company.

The present report has been issued by the Board in order to present the particular circumstances justifying the limitation or elimination of this preferential right within the framework of an authorization granted to the Board for a period of five years.

It is recalled that in this framework the position expressed by Maitres Jacques and Cosita Delvaux who note that « However, the obligation to indicate in a precise manner the cost of issuing new shares, as well as the reasons justifying the limitation or suppression of the preferential right, is difficult to perform at the time that the meeting is called upon to give authorization to the Board of Directors to increase the subscribed capital for an extended period of up to five years. »

The Board, acknowledging the absolute necessity of being immediately able to adapt the strategy and organization of the Company, in particular its financial structure, in relation to changing economic markets, real estate and stock markets in which it is involved, proposes to the Meeting to authorise the Board to limit or suppress the preferential subscription rights of the shareholders in the event of future capital increases within the limits of the authorised capital in the following circumstances, any one of which being sufficient to justify the implementation of the measure:

- a) The technique of authorised capital with limitation or suppression of the preferential subscription right of existing shareholders offers the Board the flexibility and speed required to become involved in public and private markets both national and European, to gather funds for competing on tenders without having to resort to very costly bank bonds or guarantees, to develop and carry out large construction projects, refurbishments and developments requiring the gathering and perennial movement of large amounts of capital or to convert a supplier's debt and/or bond debt and/or beneficiary shares (parts bénéficiaires) issued by the Company into equity;

- b) A rapid decision to accept the subscription of a new or existing shareholder without resorting to a consultation of existing shareholders may also be necessary given the particularly difficult economic and financial circumstances that we have known and that may occur over time. Whether these very serious difficulties result from an economic, social, financial or political crisis, whether they are rooted globally or locally in countries where the Company's has its economic interests and/or makes its decisions is irrelevant to the Company regarding the nature of its businesses, its financial structure, (call for public saving), the markets in which it is involved and the transnational financial flow it is experiencing. The Company must at all times be able to raise the necessary funds to cope with its changing needs in working capital, to cover unexpected charges and to preserve its cash balance, to improve the structure of its finances and optimize its wealth management regarding restrictions of access to credit and the cost of external funding, to reinforce its own funds by converting suppliers' debts or venture partners into capital and to convert bond debt into equity, and to convert beneficiary shares (parts bénéficiaires) issued by the Company into equity;

or

- c) A third party subscription may also be required, if appropriate, to save the Company from serious and imminent damage from a third person and/or a harm, and/or a litigation, and/or particularly negative economic and financial circumstances, peculiar to the Company, causing or likely to cause consequential risks, losses or damages. This subscription with limitation or suppression of the preferential subscription right will allow, if appropriate, the Company to strengthen its liquidity or supply funding in accordance with the prudential rules in force.

- d) The technique of authorised capital with limitation or suppression of the preferential subscription right for existing shareholders will be used by the Board in the case of a take-over bid or a hostile attack, in an attempt to take control or any other capital action brought against the Company, planned or not, by one or several shareholders and/or future shareholders and for whom the authorised capital clause would emerge as one of the most rapid and effective means to preserve the social interest of the Company, to defend its values and projects, to sustain the employment of its staff and to guarantee protection of its holdings.

- e) The technique of authorised capital with limitation or suppression of the preferential subscription right for existing shareholders will be used in the exercise of stock options, convertible bonds, warrants or other convertible securities into shares issued by the Company, the conversion of debt to capital (including the conversion of debt of other companies of the group into share capital of the Company), the conversion of beneficiary shares (parts bénéficiaires) issued by the Company into share capital and to allow share issues for the benefit of employees, management and directors of the Company.

- f) The technique of authorised capital with limitation or suppression of the preferential subscription right for existing shareholders will be used by the Board to realize capital increases for the benefit of one or several existing shareholders or, in particular, for the benefit of new shareholders in order to preserve or guarantee the implementation of the strategic direction of the Company or to give a fresh impetus or better stability to the Company and allow it to develop in the best conditions.

- g) The long, costly and relatively complex procedure for a quoted company to call a new extraordinary general meeting which could decide on different types of capital increases (e.g. a capital increase with a preference right) instead of what is proposed by points 2, 3 and 4 of the agenda for the Meeting may be, under certain circumstances, incompatible with certain fluctuations of the financial markets or business opportunities to which the Company could lay claim. The impossibility of calling a new general meeting in time under such circumstances may be damaging to the Company. In such circumstances, the technique of authorised capital will also be used.

3- Methods by which the Board proposes to limit or suppress the preferential subscription right of shareholders while achieving future capital increases in the framework of the authorised capital:

The Board recommends the Meeting to authorise it to limit or suppress the shareholders' preferential subscription right while it is achieving future capital increases within the framework of the authorised capital, in respect of all capital increases, including contributions in cash or in kind, among others, the conversion of debt to capital (including the conversion of debt of other companies of the group into share capital of the Company), by credit compensation, by incorporating reserves, first issues or related benefits, with or without the issue of new shares, or following the issue and the exercise of subordinated or non-subordinated bonds, convertible or refundable or exchangeable for shares (determined at time of issue or following it), or following the issue of bonds with warrants or any other share subscription right, or following the conversion of beneficiary shares (parts bénéficiaires) into ordinary shares, or by the issue of warrants or any other instrument bearing a share subscription right.

The share price at which new shares will be issued will be determined based on the par value set in the Company's articles of association at time of issue.

Besides the par value, new shareholders may have to pay an issue premium, as applicable and decided by the Board, which will be calculated in terms of the accounting value of existing shares.

The Board of Directors of the Company.
